Formulation Consulting Services: Techceuticals provides immediate assistance to help resolve your production challenges. We can offer help from the desktop right onto the manufacturing floor. Many customers prefer guidance, and others want hands-on assistance to develop, or optimize formulations and written batch production records. We evaluate and provide formulations based on the processing and manufacturing equipment within your facility, and can also make equipment recommendations. When need be we will recommend and provide training on any new equipment technology, or write the SOP needed to train your employees on your equipment.

Formula Review: Is a fast and effective way to get assistance for providing solutions. This is a service for new or existing formulations that you may be having problems with, or simply need to optimize.

Batch Record Review: We will provide a complete review of each step in your batch record, and solve the production problems found in specific formulations. Many times the formulation is not the problem. The process and addition of materials and how these materials interact often creates the problem. Each formulation is unique to its processing and mixing, and using the same processing on different formulations creates poor production yields.

Formulation Development: We will develop a complete new formulation with you, or for you. The initial work can be done from our desktop, the fine tuning on your equipment and process is completed either in person; or for minor adjustments, by phone or document transfers.

Bach Record Creation: We will provide a complete batch record for your specific processes and equipment. We can assist your team in batch record development, or complete the total Batch Record process by phone, or in person.

Optimization: Many times customers have a need for speed, but the product will not run any faster no matter how fancy the tablet press. We can help work within the formula to optimize the steps within the operation without changing anything, and help you optimize your product to make it better than you could imagine without having to re-file or start over.

On Site Formulation & Batch record Review: Nothing beats being there in person and working directly with the products and personnel. Seeing the conditions and equipment to maximize a product and teach individuals how to formulate and create their own batch records.
